SIC ITUR AD ASTRA
"Thus man rises to the stars"

TRADITION is the passing down from generation to generation of ideas, customs, beliefs and stories. In this twentieth century many individuals are inclined to scoff at the forces of conformity or the fixed social and moral customs of an established society.

It is true that nations cannot progress without inventions and new ideas. However, let us never be reluctant to borrow from the past. At Sarnia Collegiate Institute and Technical School tradition should still play an important part in our academic, social and athletic endeavours.

In 1942 a student in Grade XIII at S.C.I. & T.S. obtained thirteen first class honours in one year. In 1937 and 1941 students each obtained eleven firsts in Grade XIII. Recently in 1963 one of our students obtained an average of 87% on eight subjects in Grade XIII to lead Lambton County in that particular year. Last year our mathematics team at S.C.I. & T.S. placed 33rd among over 300 schools in Canada, and one of our students was ninth among 6,000 competitors. Finally, one of our graduates of former years received the honour of becoming a Rhodes Scholar. Surely this is a tradition that present scholars at S.C.I. & T.S. must strive to maintain.

In social endeavours our SCITS REVUE speaks for itself with packed audiences year after year. In athletic achievements S.C.I. & T.S. has always had a wonderful tradition. In 1928 the S.C.I. & T.S. football team won the Canadian football championship in a game played at Varsity stadium. Gymnastic teams from our school have won Ontario championships. Our female students in the past have displayed championship calibre in gymnastic and swimming exhibitions. In 1961 our rifle team won an Ontario championship. It is gratifying to note that our present athletes are continuing to uphold the honour of the blue and white colours in football, basketball, volleyball, curling, bowling, etc., etc.

In closing may I thank the Ad Astra staff and teacher sponsors for once again carrying on the tradition of another fine school magazine.

"A Time to Every Purpose"

Ecclesiastes III

High school is a time not only for digesting facts found in textbooks, but also a time for learning how to live with successes, disappointments, proud moments and embarrassing eternities.

The successes can be in the form of a good exam mark, an applause at Revue time, or a goal in an important game. Success should also include winning the confidence of friends and the trust of teachers. The disappointments may be poor grades, a failure to make an team, a "boo" in a Drama Club production or a three-day suspension for misbehavior. These successes and failure produce "proud moments" or "embarrassing eternities."

Being the editor of the 51st Ad Astra has been a great honour, and I would like to express my deepest gratitude to all those who helped me. First, to Mr. Arthurs, who plodded and prodded along with me and deserves the title, "Mr. Ad Astra." Next, to Sylvia Mackintosh and the rest of the Layout Staff for carrying their enormous burden, and lastly, to every one else on the magazine staff for their co-operation.

As you open your 1966 Ad Astra, you will notice some changes. If you like the yearbook, the staff is grateful, but if you have some major criticisms, I challenge you to join the "Ad Astra" and produce in the future the kind of yearbook you think the school merits.

Valedictory Address

by Bob Barkwell

Mr. Saunders, Mr. Pate, Members of the staff, fellow graduates, ladies and gentlemen: When I got Mr. Saunders' invitation to speak tonight, I accepted with misgiving. I didn't have the faintest notion of what I could say that would be worthwhile. My search for something worth saying eventually led me to look for a definition of valedictory. In the strict sense of the word, a valedictory is a farewell; the farewell of this class to this school. But any such farewell must, of necessity, be a very personal thing. A simple history of the highlights of the last five years cannot and does not express the effect of a school on those that pass through it. The shaping of character, of patterns of thought, even of personality, are effects which I have found impossible to put into bald prose and dissect before an audience. Therefore, since I cannot express my own farewell, much less those of the class, I leave farewell to each person to say for himself, in his own way.

But a valedictory is also a message from the graduating class to those who have taken their place. There is a question of whether, after two months of college, we are qualified to give a message; perhaps not. Nonetheless, I will make the attempt.

In today's society, as always, life is based on the need to make decisions and choices. It is impossible to go through life avoiding them; either someone else will make them for you, as they did when you were a child, and you will become a puppet, not living but merely existing, or you will be destroyed. There is no second alternative.

There are many types of decisions, but for purposes of this address, I have divided them into three classes; personal decisions, by which I mean decisions relating to your personal existence; concerned decisions, that is, decisions about others; and abstract decisions, or decisions which do not immediately and directly affect your life.

Personal decisions come in every size, from what colour tie to buy to what your career will be. Obviously, some of these are more important than others. Obviously again, there will be some overlapping with concerned decisions; for instance, when you decide on a mate. The striking thing about personal decisions is that their effect is more or less immediate and direct; you buy this tie or that; you take certain courses in preparation for this or that.

Concerned decisions are those which you make about the future, happiness, and welfare of others. The most obvious examples are the decisions made for and about children by their parents. Again, there is overlapping with both personal and abstract decisions. You make a decision to help someone in trouble, for instance, because of a prior abstract decision that those in need should always be helped. Note that the effects of concerned decisions are also mostly immediate and direct.

Abstract decisions are those which do not usually have a direct and immediate bearing on your life. They are the factors behind most personal and concerned decisions. For example, an abstract decision that life is sacred may lead to a personal decision not to be a soldier, or more positively, to become a doctor. Since such decisions are usually, though not always, made in our youth, their effect becomes evident only over a period of many years or when precipitated by a crisis, and then in an indirect manner.

There are many factors which these decisions have in common; the personality of the person, the interaction of decisions of different types and the need for knowledge about any situation before a decision can be taken. The most important factor linking them is the last; the need for knowledge. And knowledge implies education, formal or otherwise.

This brings me to one of my major points this evening--the need to get all the education you can. This point has been belaboured by so many people that it has lost most of its original effectiveness. Moreover, it may sound somewhat pompous coming from a first year university student. Nevertheless, it is worth repeating. Without education, you either cannot make intelligent decisions or you are restricted to a small range over which you can make them. This is one of the major tragedies of today; that so many people are trapped by their own ignorance. Do not let this happen to you; get the best education you can obtain; anything else is not worth your time or effort. Moreover, education does not end with graduation or the end of apprenticeship. It must go on throughout life. The man who has ceased to learn has begun to die. Education stimulates thought from which comes decision. It is thought and the ability to make conscious decisions, which is the main difference between man and beast.

But, to quote Colin Wilson in "The Outsider", 'Thought alone is no use. Action is necessary. Action alone gives thought and decision meaning.' Your decisions and choices are useless unless you act on them. Many of you are going on to college or out to get jobs. When you do, avoid the ivory tower complex; do not divorce yourself from the world around you. If you think the needy should be helped, volunteer your services; if you can play an instrument, join a band; if you are concerned about your community, do something about it, don't just complain. This is the crux of my message tonight--GET INVOLVED! Get your education, make your decisions and then act on them. Remember, a man is only as good as his actual performance proved that he is.

More important, the enthusiasm and involvement of a people is reflected in their leaders and institutions. A vigorous people with a great deal of citizen participation will produce a nation with great leaders and strong institutions. The converse is also true. Apathy and lack of action on major issues can destroy our society. You and I are the citizens of tomorrow; if we refuse to act, who will?

Little of what I had to say tonight was inspired or even original. Some things, indeed, have been said so often that they have become hackneyed. But they have been repeated so often because they are worth listening to. Therefore, at the risk of boring you, I have tried to repeat them once again. In any case, this is my message; get an education, formal or otherwise, think, and above all act on your decision.

ORGANIZATIONS

Clubs Editorial

School clubs should play an important part in the school life of every student; they fulfil a number of functions. Through his membership in a club, a student is given the opportunity to increase not only the number of his friends, but also his scope of interest. Important character traits such as the ability to lead, to organize, and to initiate projects may be fostered and developed.

Clubs perform a number of functions for the school. They form the backbone of school social life and perform many services such as sponsoring and helping at dances and coat-checking. Many useful contributions to the school are made by clubs, a prime example being the clubs' timetable donated by the Key Club.

Here at SCITS, the clubs are varied to suit your interest. Are you scientifically minded? Then the Science or Electronics Club may be for you. If you want to be of service to the school or the community, the Key Club may satisfy this desire. The Bowling and Curling Clubs may provide an outlet for your extra energy. Does your heart beat faster at the thought of footlights and applause? You should be able to find fulfilment for this yearning by participating in either the Drama Club or the SCITS Revue. Do you like to organize and lead? If you are elected to the Students' Council, you will have plenty of opportunity to exercise your abilities of leadership and organization.

Mary Erba 13-B

Students Council

The Council includes a representative from each form, a representative from each organization within the school, and two staff advisors—Mr. McCahill and Mr. Marquis.

Some of the Council's activities included a parade to boost spirit during the football season, dress-up day with Tea Dances after school in the gym, selling of sweat-shirts, the chocolate bar drive, and many school dances including our annual Spring Prom.

The success of any Council depends upon the backing of the student body and the guidance from our staff. Both have aided in the success of our 1965-1966 Students Council.

Awards Committee

It is this committee that records the accumulated points for each person in the different fields of academics and extra-curricular activities such as sports or clubs.

A minimum of ten points in each of the three divisions must be held. Even if enough points are held the award is not automatic. The final decision of presenting the awards is left to the committee.

Reporters Club

STANDING; Cynthia Dayman, Mavis Ryan, Barbara Heatley, Mr. McKee (Advisor), Julia Brown, Sheila Haughey. SEATED: Cheryl Sands, Debbie Helmer.

The purpose of the Reporters' Club is to keep the students and public informed about the many school sports, clubs and special events during the year. The girls write for newspapers such as the Observer, Gazette, London Free Press, and the Windsor Daily Star as well as for the radio station, CHOK.

Each girl writes weekly articles for these papers and after they appear in them, the clippings are posted on the bulletin board. After they are removed from the board they are kept in a scrapbook which records events of the past four years.

Much credit and thanks are due to the Staff advisor, Mr. McKee.

Lettermen's Club

To qualify for this unique organization, the Lettermen's Club, a student must have received his senior letter. This year the club has twelve Senior Lettermen who work to help promote school spirit. For the football season they printed team posters, cheer sheets, and also decorated the ball park in blue and white for the championship game.

To help put the school in a Christmas spirit, they presented a skit entitled "The Night Before Christmas" at the Christmas assembly.

Spades Club

The purpose of the club is to aid the handicapped in general but visitations have been kept exclusively to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic. Money for projects is earned by having a "Bookcheck" at all football games.

Speakers are invited to speak on various diseases and help club members to understand the many afflictions of their fellow citizens.

Key Club

The Key Club is dedicated to serving community and school. Projects such as coat-checking, car washes, and dances not only serve others but raise money to support club ventures. A highlight of the year was the presentation of a large school activity directory case, now displayed in the main hall.

Drama Club

In October, the SCI & TS Drama Club presented an American classic "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams which starred Barbara Booth as Amanda, David Clift as Tom. Lorraine Viney played Laura and Jim, the gentleman caller, was played by John Hurst. The play which was directed by Mr. Ward was a definite success with all members of the cast giving strong and convincing performances.

Chess Club

Meetings are held Mondays and Wednesdays under the supervision of Mr. Bell. The main object is to practice and improve the game of each member, the culmination of which is participation in the inter-school competition for the Saunder's Trophy.

Paul Milliman (Pres.), Peter Catton (Sect.), Mr. Bell (Staff Advisor), Karl Knudsen.

Electronics Club

A new club was formed late last year and was re-started at the beginning of the term this year. It provides a new experience for many who do not normally take this subject. The Electronics Club, under the supervision of Mr. Thomas, meets each Tuesday and there is also a meeting on the second Thursday of each month.

The students are free to perform any task they so desire but so far everyone has confined himself to kit-building and learning Morse Code in order to take up Ham radios in the future.

Camera Club

Under the skillful eye of Mr. Bakker, a new Camera Club has been formed and already a number of students have learned the tricks of the trade. Many of the fine pictures in this year's "Ad Astra" are the result of their activity.

Science Club

The 1965-1966 season saw many new and interesting changes in the Science Club under the guidance of Mr. Prezeau. The meetings were held every Tuesday afternoon. Films were shown every other week.

On the alternate weeks the members delivered seminars on a phase of Science which interested them. A ten-minute question-and-answer period followed each seminar.

The Science Club has been invited to the University of Western Ontario to visit the Natural Science Departments in 1966.

This year the French Club initiated a new idea--the presentation of a book to the student with the highest standing in Grade 13 French. The old tradition of "Fudge Day" was also carried on.

The French Club meets every second Thursday under the leadership of Miss McNiven.

Yes, Revue '66 was a success. The formula of hard work, perseverance and inspiration resulted in a funny, fast-moving smooth-running show in the tradition of the high standard set by Revue '65. All members of this year's SCITS Club can be proud of all the part they played, whether large or small, in carrying on that tradition and capturing the above newspaper credits.

Our own SCI & TS Band is finally rolling once more and flaring out even further than previously in its musical endeavours. After a poor start, due to unfortunate circumstances, a blessing was sent in the form of Mr. Jolley, who has, thanks to much hard work, picked up the band which is now in the process of advancing to greater heights of proficiency than in former years. Since Mr. Jolley is new about our school, a note of introduction might be in order.

Five members this year were chosen from three hundred to take part in an "All Star" performance held in London. We hear that this experience, along with being a lot of fun, was also very rewarding, even though a good deal of hard work was also involved. We are again counting on the individuals as well as the whole band to carry-off in their same old tradition all the firsts possible in the May Festival. This is an excellent opportunity to reveal to the public the tremendous effort that is put forth by both students and instructor. The band is also participating in such activities as the SCI & TS Revue, and massed band concerts. Individuals will have an opportunity to broaden their knowledge at the annual Waterloo Music Clinic and the Student Talents Festival in Toronto.

SCITS Revue Blasts Off Into Spectacular Orbit

By BARRY BUTSON
(Observer Staff Writer)

Those connected with SCITS '66 can be as proud of Tuesday night's performance as the Russians of their moonshot.

The revue got off the ground Tuesday night and despite some technical difficulties it is carried to the heights of success by sheer talent and experience.

This year, students presented their own perceptive version of the theme "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." And like the movie of the same name its humor was slapstick carried rough by a large cast of fine performers.

The talent displayed by the likes of Bob Baldwin and Jim McLean (actors) and Sharon Rowe and Phil Goodwin (musicians) makes one want to brag about Sarnia high school students. And the Can-Can girls and "James Bomb" girls added to the list of attractions.

BETTER LATE . . .
The show which was supposed to begin at 8.30 and end two hours later, ran to about 11.15 and to some this may seem a little late. But chances are, some of the wrinkles will be ironed out for the performance tonight, and Saturday in order to send the audience home a little earlier. And in any case, if last night's almost full house is any indication, no one will be bored if it lasts to midnight.

Director David Sauve deserves credit for keeping the pace of the show varied. It goes from the great satirical expose of the "Uncle Nutsey" skit to the melodic tones of the Travellers' "Greensleeves," and from the flashing gaiety of the "Can-Can" to Sharon Rowe's rendition of "Climb Every Mountain."

Bob Baldwin was the star of the show, with all his excellent mannerisms and improvisations. Though the hilarious acrobatics of the thin boy, Jim McLean, also stole the show.

The music was also much better than one would expect from a single core of high school students. The school orchestra, under the direction of Donald Jolley, played the two overtures to perfection and the almost Buddy Holly sounds of "The Misfits" were better than you'll see in the night spots around Sarnia on an average night. Phil Goodwin's haunting sax rendition of "Harlem Nocturne" was also exciting.

The costumes were good, the sets were good, the script was too, and only space limits the number of plaudits that could be added to this list. It looked as if almost every student and half the teachers put some effort or other into the staging. All one can add is, try and get a ticket.

HAPPINESS IS TO GROW UP

TO HIS TIME

we know so little about this man who beauty and enjoyment to the world. Reasonable conjectures based on these we to go on. As he was baptized, we was probably born three days earlier, the world observes his birthday as the eldest of seven children, he was the son of a man of some importance in Stratford, a man of some importance in Stratford, both alderman and bailiff (or mayor in some towns) and who seems to have been a dealer in grain and to have had intermittent business ventures. His mother was Mary, a small but prosperous landowner in the country.

Stratford must have been a delightful place to grow up. There were entertainments on special days by the trade-guilds and such as Morris dancing and May-day celebrations, which were visits to Stratford and the surrounding towns of Warwick and Coventry by travel, when he was eleven, young Will was with his father, who staged their plays in the inn-yards, among the vast throng at Kenilworth to witness the Earl of Leicester welcomed Queen Elizabeth as his guest. And surrounding the lovely Warwickshire countryside where Shakespeare must have roamed and acquired much of his store of knowledge of natural life which his plays are full of. There, too, he developed that sensitive appreciation of the English seasons which sprang so spontaneously into his verse.

JULIUS CAESAR

...of a grammar school in Stratford where the famous plays in all such schools, was on Latin. How we do not know, but he very likely attended it. On his next few years we know scarcely anything. It is probable he married Anne Hathaway, eight years his elder, who lived in adjacent Shottery and whose home, now known as Anne Hathaway's Cottage, is a point of interest yearly for thousands of Stratford visitors. Three children were born of the marriage: Susannah in 1583 and twins, Hamnet and Judith, two years later.

Between 1585 and 1591 Shakespeare moved to London where he became an actor and playwright and in time part owner of the Swan Theatre. Between 1592 and 1611 he wrote all his famous plays and sonnets, the former of which are listed in their respective periods of writing on page 10 of this introduction. When we consider just a few of the

N O S E S

Jane Fraser 12-A

Noses are rapidly losing their influence and position in society. Gone are the days when a nose was the glowing pride of its owner, and expressed a total personality of its own. People of our modern world are ridiculously asleep to the advantages of noses, and consider only the trivial inconveniences they cause. Consider a noseless world.

Where would the frightening, barbaric tribes of Africa be without their noses? Obviously, their savage appearances would be limited without the cold, ferocious gleam of the traditional nose-ring, the characteristic which makes a cannibal, a cannibal. Without this major addition to their faces, gone would be a great deal of the image of brutality they create-all because of their noses.

Even more dependent on noses, are our frozen neighbours of the north. Picture the statistical drop in the marriages of Eskimos, if they did not have noses. Courtship would be a boresome "drag" without the romantic "nose rubbing" in the moonlight of the Canadian north. Eskimos would suffer from a deficiency of self expression and undoubtedly would develop psychological complexes, if they could not rub noses.

There is nothing that could replace them as the beginning of our scent nerves. Ears plainly could not compete, being blocked by hair. Besides, the beautiful fragrances of our world are much sweeter when concentrated in one stream of perception, than if they were divided on entering each side of the head.

Just imagine! Father's time-inherited image would be knocked from its pedestal! A deep mood of indecision, before he breaks the tragic news of the rise in the monthly telephone bill, has always called for a ferocious warning of his glaring red banner-his handkerchief. What would a father be without his red-checked "hanky" or the navy blue polka-dot-the workman's pride and joy. The prominent in the world of success flaunt one of pure Irish linen, but many "dads" prefer the dimstore "bandanna." What would men do without their noses, and the opportunities they afford for expressing themselves?

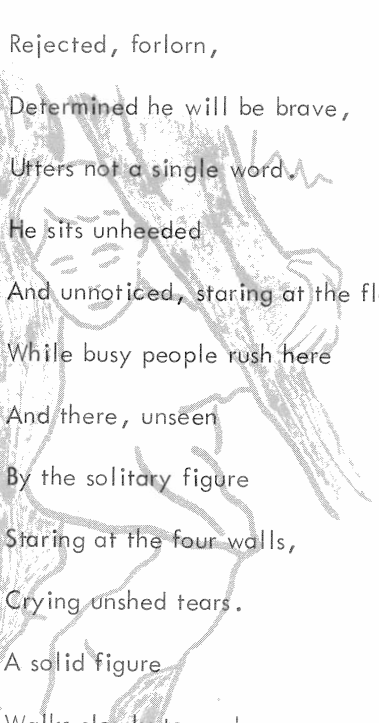

Noses present challenges as perfect targets for assault. As anger and jealousy blind an eager suitor, his competitor's nose is the first thing that he thinks of, and in minutes his irritation is somewhat subdued. However, his foolish opponent is left with downtrodden pride, and a sign of defeat in his broken nose. So, of course, without noses, the world would be a boring, peaceful association. There would be no challenging target for the angered, the bully, or the boxer.

If we did not have noses, where would those gray-haired professors prop their glasses in creating an image of severity? No one would be able to wear spectacles and the results would be tragic. Teachers would surrender their beloved occupations, unable to see the board, car accidents would multiply, and worst of all, secretaries and librarians would be forced to sacrifice their serious and studious expressions.

Yet, despite all these uses, these organs have an even more important function in expressing the true character and emotions of the owner. How ordinary and uninteresting surroundings would be, if each person did not bear his own, original and uniquely designed noses. Imagine a world of billions of snub, flat-nosed people all bearing the same expression, or an entire town of prim and proper people, with noses permanently wrinkled in characteristic disgust.

So, bearing in mind only a few of the distinct advantages of the nose, appreciate this appendage and always remember that plastic surgery is performing miracles in this, our modern age.

THE BRAVE BOY

There he sits,
Without any realism
Of the time that passes
Swiftly, as he huddles
Miserably in that small corner
Of the room.
The lone figure,
Rejected, forlorn,
Determined he will be brave,
Utters not a single word.
He sits unheeded
And unnoticed, staring at the floor;
While busy people rush here
And there, unseen
By the solitary figure
Staring at the four walls,
Crying unshed tears.
A solid figure
Walks slowly towards
The boy, rehearsing his speech
Over and over again.
When at last finished,
He is confronted by the small boy,
Wild-eyed and frightened;
But the boy does not cry,
He only says, "God, why did You make my mommy die?"

NOTHINGNESS

The darkness gets weak.
The sun is orange;
The trees, black.
The autumn leaves fall
With the morning breeze.
The grass looks wet--cold.
Cold north wind!
The pink fades;
The blue-white--
Nothingness.

MEMORIES

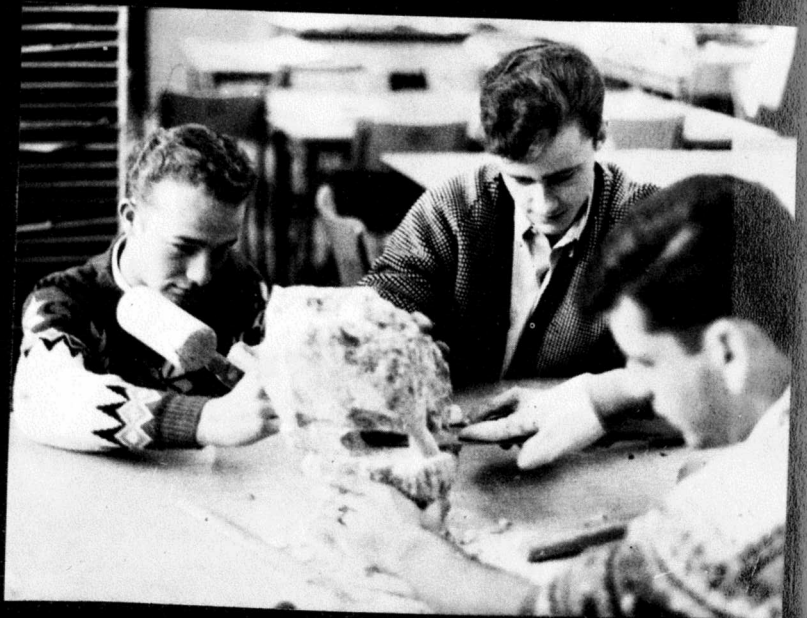

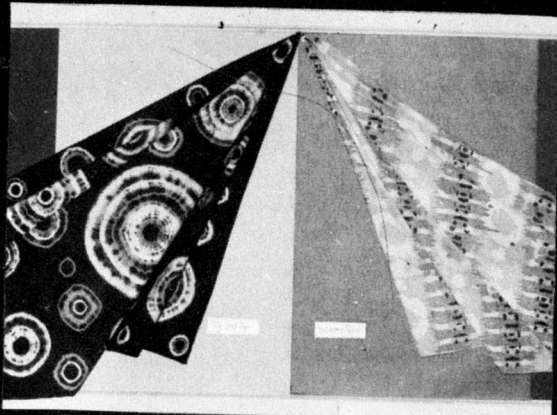

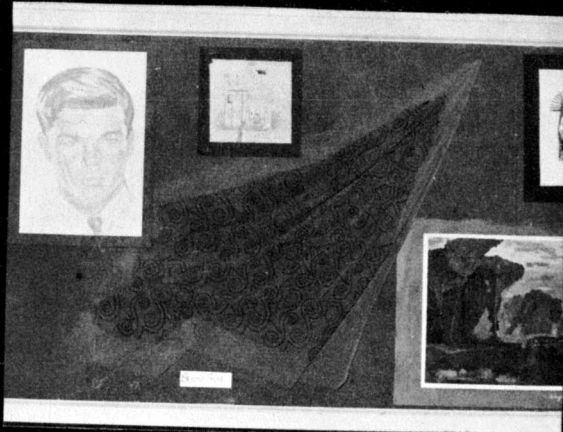

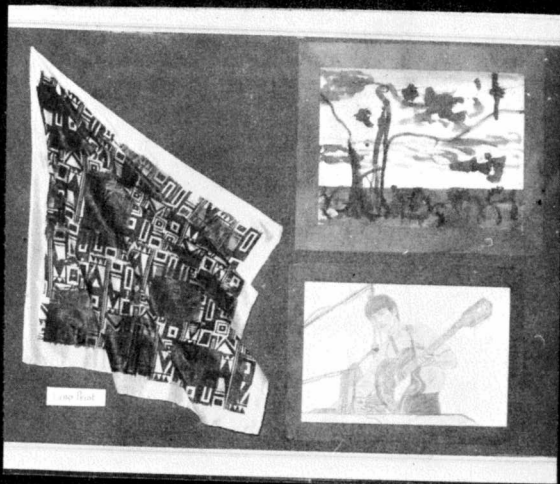

Shafts of sunlight pierced the gloom,
Crimson carpets lay below,
Trees have donned their "Joseph" coats
In preparation for the snow.
A stream sang merrily o'er the stones
Babbling by the lea;
The wind chants an old refrain
Through shivering boughs of a tree.
With joy she frolicked and danced atop
Rippling blades of grass,
Rustling her skirts through mounds of leaves.
I listen to hear her pass.
I tread along the dusty path,
The world in silence lay--
The awesome night had suddenly pounced
As a cat upon his prey.
Blissfully I gazed once more
Across this silver-threaded scene;
Etched on my mind is this place I love
Where no one else has been.

THIS FIFTY-FIRST EDITION IS RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO
Mr. J. W. Rome
Head, Physical Education
S.C.I. & T.S.

Mr. Rome received his high school education at Toronto Humber side and here began an outstanding athletic career. He excelled at football, basketball, gymnastics, and track and field. He was gymnastics champion of Toronto for five years and won the Ontario Gymnastics meet in 1952.

His fame carried over into university where, at McMaster, he was captain of the Maurauders in his final year (1955-56) and was third draft choice for the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Following graduation, Mr. Rome took a degree in Public Health and Education then came to SCI&TS in 1957. In 1962, he was made head of the Physical Education Department.

Those students who have come in contact with Mr. Rome have found him unselfish, interested and inspiring. We are proud to have him in our midst and feel that some recognition for his labour and love is due. To "Jake" and his hours of hard work we dedicate the hours of hard work and effort which went into this yearbook in the hope that it will become one of the many good memories in his life.

As the final gun sounded on Friday afternoon November 5, SCI&TS Blue Bombers won their THIRD CONSECUTIVE S.S.S.A.A. FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Our first game was against St. Clair which we won 25-7.

In the second game, we were matched with the St. Patrick's Fighting Irish. Both the defense and offense played well as we came off with a winning score of 32-7.

On RED FEATHER NIGHT our opponents were the Northern Vikings. The weather was especially good for this game. In the opening minutes of the game, Northern made a touchdown and a safety before we could get started. Our first T.D. was set up by Rick Allen's blocked punt and Jim Finch's recovery on the Northern nine-yard line. Fred Daws then ran off-tackle for the T.D. As we got the ball again, Tommy Barr ran 15 yds. to make the score 12-8. In the next quarter, Barr ran 5 yds. for an 18-8 score. Dave Martin in the third quarter ran 10 yards and a minute later, Allen intercepted a pass for another touchdown, making the score a comfortable 30-8. Kevin McNeil recovered a punt and then Glyn-Jones went off tackle for a T.D. Barr's conversion made the final score 37-8.

The fourth game was against the Central Centaurs who we managed to defeat by the score of 25-7 on a wet field.

For the Semi-Final game we again met Central. We had a little more difficulty but were victorious by 14-6.

In the final game of the season, the SCI&TS Blue Bombers met the Fighting Irish. In this game two different attacks were presented.

From the kick-off, Barr and Barnes powered the ball in position for Barnes to get his first touchdown of the game. The score was 6-6. As we again got control of the ball, Cranston faked twice into the line, rolled out and lateralled to Martin for a 64 yard run and a T.D. Later, from the 20 yd. line, Cranston faked twice again into the line and made the end-zone standing up. The score read: SCI&TS 26, St. Pats 12. After the St. Pats kick-off, Barr, Barnes, and Martin moved the ball to the seven. Cranston then rolled out to the right and hit Barr for 6 points. As Sproule kicked off, John Taylor recovered a St. Pat's fumble on the 31-yard line. Barnes and Barr got the ball to the ten where Cranston pitched to Martin for the final T.D. The score: 39-30.

Much of the credit goes to our faithful linesmen who really do all the sweat and toil; that's what really makes the team work. Another thing is that we have the best coaching in the city, and I mean THE BEST! The team and students would like to thank Mr. Edgar and Mr. Fleet for their time and excellent coaching.

Yesterday, Today And..
Tomorrow?

G.A.A.

Although the G.A.A. began the 1965-'66 season somewhat slowly, it pulled itself together with the arrival of Mrs. Murray. The club named from its executive of fourteen, curators to organize and schedule girls' sports.

Other ventures included: refreshments for the first school dance, sponsoring the Hallowe'en Dance, and hosting the city Volleyball Tournament. Other plans were the Annual Posture Queen Contest, a Referees' Club, a Gymnastics Club, and a constitutional election of next year's G.A.A. None of these things could have been accomplished without the patient support of Mrs. Murray and Mrs. McLeod.

CHEERLEADERS

The SCI&TS Cheerleaders for 1965-'66 deserve special commendation for leading the school supporters through another Bomber Victory. Under captain Janis Levin, the squad devoted much time to producing a variety of new cheers, to which the students responded enthusiastically.

"Old Timers" were joined by Jo-ann Pelletier, Trudy Soyko, Sue Isom, Joy Heather, and Stephanie Ketley from among the many contestants who tried out for the squad.

Although the weather was not always in our favour, co-operation between the group and students managed to keep the spirit at a high level. In our final victory game, the squad was aptly assisted by the popular male cheerleaders, who, with their crazy antics, kept the school's spirit moving.

Special thanks go to the gym teachers for their assistance in judging candidates and advising them throughout the season, and to our cheerleaders for a job well done.

GOOD NEWS!

BOMBERS RECEIVE NORM PERRY FOOTBALL TROPHY

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Inter-form basketball took on a new light this year under the excellent supervision of Mrs. Murray and Mrs. McLeod. Schedules were faithfully posted and games arranged - even in the boys' gym and I'm sure the boys in the gallery got some helpful hints from watching! Curators from the GAA who were responsible for a great deal of the work were: Debbie Williams and Elke Ramsden.

The forms who claimed the championship were: C-Special, 11C-D, and 10E.

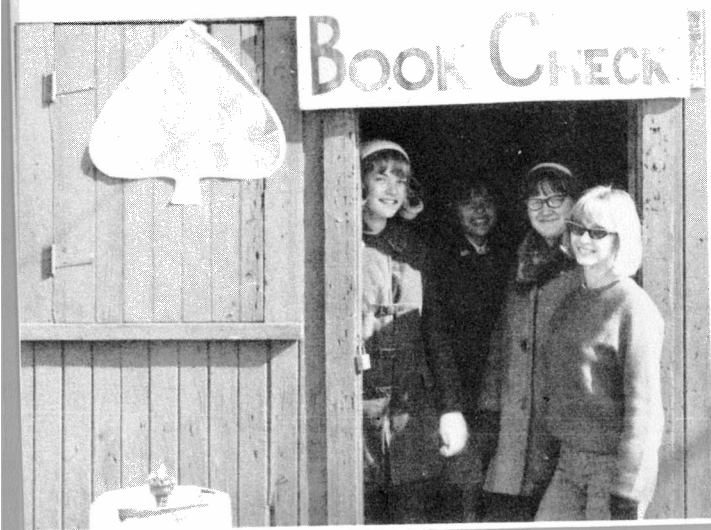

GIRL'S CURLING

Girl's Curling seems to get better every year and this season was a great one for SCITS. Five teams participated throughout the winter in competition with other Sarnia School teams, under five skips: Ann Forbes, Sue Hale, Suzanne Mott, Lairnia Wallace, and Debbie Williams. Debbie represented all SCITS players on the city executive which planned the schedules and teams.

Debbie, Ann Forbes, Sue Hale, and Bonnie Zinkie made up the WOSSA team, and after beating down all Sarnia opposition, they attended the Western Ontario Bonspiels in St. Thomas and placed third, Congrats!

Thanks are due to Mrs. Roberts, the staff advisor, and everyone is looking forward to an even better season next year.
